NATIONS APPROVE ARMS REDUCTION

TWENTY-SIX FAVOR HOOVER PROPOSALS OFFERED AT GENEVA

Japan And France Are
Chief Obstacles To Adoption

GENEVA, June 23.—The American plan to reduce the world's armaments by one third and relieve the world of an expenditure of from ten to fifteen billion dollars in ten years had the approval of twenty-six nations today.

Either publicly or privately, the representatives of these nations had informed Ambassador Hugh Gibson that their governments approved the American proposals.

Japanese opposition was the chief fear of the American delegates to the world disarmament conference. Tokyo was expected to offer greater opposition to real disarmament than the French delegates.

The Japanese considered existing naval ratios only provisional until 1936, when they would be subject to revision. The American plan might provide that present relative naval strengths continue indefinitely.

The Americans believed that French opposition, intensified by the Paris press and French politicians, could be overcome through new offers of security. This might be achieved through a unilateral security pledge which, combined with another purely European security pact, would meet the French requirements.

Italy was the first nation to give the plan complete and unconditional approval. Foreign Minister Dino Grandi communicated the plan by telephone to Premier Benito Mussolini. Il Duce approved it immediately. He outlined the speech which Grandi later made before the commission.

Tsuneko Matsudaira told the commission that the Japanese government would reserve its views on the plan until it was carefully studied.

The Japanese delegate agreed that private conversations should be continued despite the suggestion for uniform reduction of naval strength, contrasted with the Japanese desire for a higher ratio. He said he hoped the private conversations would not succeed in that phase of the proposals, but rather would result in modification of the London and Washington naval treaties.

Support of the plan by Germany, Spain, Russia, and Great Britain was considered "practically complete," as these nations had made only slight reservations.

The French reservation for the

FLEMING CASE IS POSTPONED

Third Sidney Trial Is Continued

SIDNEY, O., June 23.—The third trial of Grover Fleming, editor of the Ohio Examiner, on charges of criminal libel set for today in common pleas court, was continued indefinitely by Judge J. D. Barnes, less than forty-eight hours after the jury in his second trial was dismissed in a deadlock.

The third trial results from charges of libel preferred by Ed Miller, superintendent of the Shelby County Home, based upon a story of "love blooms" involving Miller and a woman employee of the home.

Judge Barnes dismissed the jury in the trial of a similar charge brought by Mrs. Myrtle Stephens when unable to reach a verdict Tuesday night.

Fleming's sentence for conviction of libel against Police Chief William O'Leary is pending the completion of the other cases. In the latter case, Chief O'Leary and other officers allegedly were accused of drinking and attentions to married women.

SHARON, Pa., June 23.—George Krall, 72, is held in the Wheatland jail today while county authorities investigate the murder of Martin Pelles 47, his son-in-law, shot down by the aged man following a quarrel late yesterday. Krall surrendered to Constable William Hearsley, saying, "I'm glad I did it." The men had quarreled.

COLLAPSES

After describing in detail how David Hutton, husband of Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist "swept me off my feet," Myrtle St. Pierre, pretty Los Angeles nurse, collapsed in court during her suit for $200,000 breach of promise against the portly choir singer. She charged that Hutton promised to marry her and then took the evangelist for his wife instead. Miss St. Pierre is shown here on the witness stand.

COLUMBUS WALLACE OF YELLOW SPRINGS ENDS LIFE WITH GUN

Commits Suicide In Auto
Thursday At Springfield

Columbus A. "Lum" Wallace, 33, employee of the Carr Nursery, Yellow Springs, committed suicide early Thursday morning by firing a bullet through his forehead, while seated in his automobile at the city limits of Springfield.

Wallace left his home in Yellow Springs to go to Springfield Tuesday noon and had not returned since, it was learned. He was found, slumped over the steering wheel of his sedan, by William Kettlelake, Clark County road patrolman, Thursday at 2:15 a. m. It is thought that he had committed suicide between 12 and 1 o'clock. A .38 caliber revolver was found in his lap.

Coroner Theodore Schaffer, of Clark County, returned a verdict of suicide and the body was removed to a Springfield morgue. Patrolman Kettlelake came to Yellow Springs after finding the body and notified members of the Wallace family. Wallace had been employed by the nursery in Yellow Springs twelve years, coming there from near Peebles, in Adams County. He and his wife and six children resided at College and High Sts., in the village.

Wallace is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Sidney Sprinkle, and the following children: Elmont, Christie, All, Lowell, Lillian and Janet, all at home. His mother, Mrs. Nan Jones, Stratline, Ind., also survives besides the following brothers and sister: Peter A. Wallace, Cincinnati; Webster Wallace, Peebles and Mrs. Lillian Setty, Springfield. He also leaves a half brother, Edward Smalley, who is stationed with the U. S. Marines in California.

Funeral arrangements have not been made.

YOUTHFUL PROWLER SHOT AND KILLED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 23.—An unidentified boy prowler was shot and killed here today by Arnold Gartner who feared the youth was about to enter the home of his step-father next door. The boy was about 14.

The youth was on the porch of the home of Gartner's stepfather, Samuel Davis, trying to raise a window, Gartner said. Three men or older boys were waiting for the youth across the street on the edge of Mill Creek Park. They escaped.

Victims Washed To Sea In Catastrophe; Reports
Place Dead At Fifty or More; Buildings
Wrecked; Relief Work Rushed

COLIMA CITY, Mexico, June 23.—Many residents of Cuyutlan were killed, the city was wrecked, and many bodies were carried out to sea by a tidal wave, refugees arriving here today said.

Cuyutlan is on the Pacific Coast. Authorities were unwilling to estimate the number of casualties pending reports from relief parties. Governor Saucedo of the state of Colima left for Cuyutlan to supervise the relief operations. The refugees were unable to tell coherent stories.

Advices from Manzanillo said the mayor had been informed by Cuyutlan officials that thirty bodies had been recovered. Other reports placed the number of known dead as high as fifty.

Representatives of the state government at Cuyutlan said no structure was left standing within half a mile of the seafloor.

The tidal wave was reported to have extended along the coast for a distance of ten miles. It left countless fish, and many sharks on shore as it returned to sea, carrying residents of Cuyutlan with it, reports said.

SHOWS ADS READ

NEW YORK, June 23.—P. A. O'Connell, Boston, president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, told delegates to the convention of the merchandise managers and sales promotion divisions of the association, that more advertising and more careful buying would help to improve merchandising conditions.

"In spite of restricted consumer buying power," he said, "people today are reading the advertisements more than they ever did before. The right kind of advertising will pull, but it must present the very best value that can be obtained at it should stress value and price."

SAILORS DANCE FOR JOY WHEN TREASURE SEARCH IS SUCCESS

Salvage Ship Saves Gold
Ingots From Lost
Vessel

BREST, France, June 23.—Champagne corks popped and sailors danced for joy celebrating the success of a dramatic treasure hunt when the salvage vessel Artiglio II after a four-year battle brought up the first ingots of gold from the sunken liner Egypt.

A five-cable grapple, the mechanical hand that reached into the Egypt's treasure room after barriers had been blasted away, dumped the first of the gold on the Artiglio's deck. After the first spontaneous celebration, the men observed one minute of silence in memory of their twelve comrades who were lost when a premature blast blew up the first salvage vessel.

The joyous news was sent to Rome and London by wireless.

The gold brought up was valued at about 20,000,000 francs. The Artiglio stood by to salvage the remainder of the treasure, estimated to be worth $5,000,000, or at least enough to make a trip to Plymouth profitable.

The Egypt sank in May, 1922, after colliding with a French freighter while enroute from England to India. The wreck was located in 1929, thirty miles off Ushant.

The men are Peter Steele, Richard Shipper, Louis Northrop, Charles Steele, Fred Boley, George Snider, Ted Keck and Fred Phillips.

They were arrested on charges filed by Albert Groff, mine owner, who claimed they blocked the road and threw stones at him, inflicting injuries.

HUTTON ATTORNEYS REVEAL PLAINTIFF HAD PLENTY LOVERS

Corpulent Baritone Seems Confident Of Defense

LOS ANGELES, June 23.—Attorneys for David L. Hutton, choir leader husband of Aimee Semple McPherson, sought to show that Myrtle Hazel Joan St. Pierre had experienced many loves before she met the corpulent baritone. Mrs. St. Pierre, who was successively Myrtle St. Peters, "Jean Deville," Mrs. H. H. Harrington, Jr., and Mrs. George Street before she agreed to become Mrs. David L. Hutton, Jr., is suing Hutton for $200,000 damages on the charge he refused to marry her after allegedly betraying her under promises they would become man and wife.

Mrs. St. Pierre shrieked and became hysterical during cross-examination as she denied insinuations she had been friendly with other men.

She was perturbed at efforts of Attorney Mark Jones to prove she had been engaged to one Edgar Ebbens in 1928, and that he had lived in her Hollywood home thereafter.

Attorneys for Hutton filed an amended answer to her complaint in which he alleged she was not a chaste woman at the time she claimed he made her love to her.

A crop of mystery witnesses appeared.

One was a man wearing a red necktie. Another was a veiled woman, plainly dressed. Hutton smiled knowingly at the press row and said:

"They've got some good stuff. I can't say more at present."

He looked a trifle bewildered, however, when four other men wearing red neckties came into the courtroom and the first mystery witness, angered at competition, turned up his coat collar and departed.

FIRE STARTS IN APARTMENT RUINS

CLEVELAND, O., June 23.—Traffic was jammed for a half hour last night as nearly 2,000 spectators watched firemen extinguish a small blaze in the ruins of the Ellington apartments, scene of the disastrous explosion and fire of June 7.

Six downtown fire companies responded to the alarm. Battalion Chief Martin O'Brien said he believed workmen cutting through second floor beams with a blow torch earlier in the afternoon started a smoldering fire which was unnoticed at the time.

ROOSEVELT DRAFTS REPEAL AMENDMENT PLANK FRIENDS SAY

Brief Platform Is Outlined; New York,
Indiana Hold Key

CHICAGO, June 23.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt has drafted a plank dealing with prohibition in less than ninety words according to friends today, who said it is "direct and frank" favoring expeditious congressional action to set a repeal amendment in motion, but with precautions against return of the saloon.

About 800 words were said to have been required by Roosevelt to draft the platform. The Republican platform was approximately 8,000 words.

Many members of the resolutions committee are promising a "short" platform at this convention. They contend that to devote thousands of words to party principles simply discourages voters from reading the document.

Former Secretary of Treasury William G. McAdoo, California's representative on the platform committee, has suggested a statement of policy confined to bare essentials and that the task of developing the ideas be left to party orators during the campaign.

New York and Indiana, according to a United Press survey today, may decide whether Roosevelt can win the Democratic presidential nomination.

If Roosevelt can hold in line his known strength, swing Virginia and Missouri, which are said to have leanings toward him once they have done their duty by their favorite sons, then with the support of New York and Indiana he quite certainly can come through a winner.

But if, on the other hand, the anti-Roosevelt forces, can hold in line the states of Maryland, Oklahoma, Ohio, California, Texas, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, and the Canal Zone, plus sixteen votes in Pennsylvania and forty in Illinois, then with help from New York and Indiana they can prevent Roosevelt's nomination.

All this presumes no change will be made in the two-thirds rule. Should that rule, under which a candidate must receive two thirds of the votes in the convention to win the nomination, be changed so that a bare majority would nominate, then Roosevelt will go into the convention with every reason to expect nomination on the first ballot.

A United Press survey based on figures gathered from each of the 48 states and from the territories represented in the convention, shows that Roosevelt will go into the convention with 499 votes exclusive of any in New York, Indiana or Illinois. That figure allows him forty in Pennsylvania and only twenty-four of Wisconsin's twenty-six.

SIX MEN ACCUSED OF MURDER CHARGE

IRONTON, O., June 23.—First degree murder charges had been filed today against six men in connection with the death of Luke Murray, 24, Atlanta, Ga., Negro, whose body was found in the Ohio River after he had been taken from the South Point, O., jail two weeks ago.

Prosecutor L. D. Andrews withdrew second degree murder charges filed against the men previously.

Those named were Taylor Nantler, 24; Theodore Johnson, 29; Garland Masie, 24; Milford Masie, 20; Clyde Elkins, 20; and Lawrence L. Masie, 19, all of South Point.

Murray had been put in jail on charges of threatening two white men with a knife.

EIGHT INJURED

ASHLAND, O., June 23.—Eight workmen were recovering from injuries received when a gas pipe exploded while they were digging a ditch. Calvin McMaster and Joseph Bowman, both of Perryville, were taken to a Mansfield hospital. All were employees of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.

MRS. KEITH-MILLER IS FACING CHARGE OF ILLEGAL ENTRY

MIAMI, Fla., June 23.—Trouble piled up today for Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviator. Cleared of suspicion recently in the mysterious death of her fiancé, Haden Clarke, she was held on charge of illegal entry from Australia, lodged by an unknown complainant.

Penniless and unable to provide $1,000 bond, Mrs. Keith-Miller was held in Dade County jail for federal immigration authorities, who made the arrest.

Mrs. Keith-Miller denied the charge of illegal entry and protested that when she came to the United States four years ago, she possessed proper credentials.

"I'm not worried," she said, "I will be out of here as soon as my attorney, James Carson, returns to the city."

Captain W. N. Lancaster, her flying partner and former fiancé, is scheduled to go on trial July 5 on a charge of murdering Clarke.

WOMAN LEADER IN CHURCH AND SOCIAL WORK FOUND KILLED

AUTOIST SEVERELY HURT IN COLLISION WITH STATE TRUCK

Cleveland Man Suffers
Fracture Of Skull;
Others Injured

Thrown through the windshield when his sedan collided with a state highway department truck at the crest of a hill on the Cincinnati Pike, two and one-half miles from Xenia, at 7:15 a. m. Thursday, Harry Kinwald, about 60, Cleveland traveling salesman, received a compound skull fracture.

At Espey Hospital here, where the injured man was taken, it also determined he sustained two broken ribs on the right side and cuts and bruises over the body.

Hospital attendants said the Cleveland driver received a fracture of the skull in the center of the forehead.

Joseph Blade, McDonnell St., this city one of the five state highway department employees riding on the truck, was also injured, not seriously, when the collision hurled him against the windshield in the truck cab.

Blade, foreman in charge of the highway gang, was removed by Charles Fisher, passing motorist, to the office of Dr. H. C. Messenger and treated for cuts about the mouth and bruises about the head and one shoulder.

Clydes Watson, driver of the truck; William Street, also riding in the cab; Thomas A. Cunningham and Edwin Moore, riding in the rear of the vehicle, were shaken but not hurt. All the highway workers live in or near Xenia.

It was reported to Walton Sphar, chief deputy sheriff, and L. A. Davis, road patrolman, who investigated, that the salesman apparently lost control of his auto as he was driving toward Xenia.

The sedan, witnesses said, swerved toward the opposite side of the road.

Mystery Surrounds Slay- ing; Victim Not Robbed

LOGAN, W. Va., June 23.—State police who yesterday were asked to search for Mrs. Robert Thurmond, 32, prominent here in church and social work, today took up the task of determining why and by whom she was slain.

Mrs. Thurmond's body was found huddled in weeds along a desolate trail in Trace Mountain late Wednesday by Garland Davis, a blackberry picker.

The coroner and State Police men M. B. Streegle, C. A. Thomson and Troy Satterfield went to the scene. The coroner said the woman died from two bullet wounds in the head and a cut in the throat, inflicted with a case knife. The officers organized a search for the slayer.

Excitement of Logan citizens was intensified when the police announced they were questioning Harry Robertson, president of the city commissioners and his Negro servant, Clarence Stephenson. Blood, the policemen said, was found on Robertson's car.

The victim was the wife of a policeman here. The coroner believed she had been slain twelve hours before her body was found. Rain had beaten down on the death scene, effacing possible clues.

Mrs. Thurmond's neck was broken and powder burns were on her face. It was deduced that she was shot at close range and her body was thrown from an automobile at the secluded spot.

She was fully clothed and wore an expensive ring and wrist watch. Her purse lay nearby, containing money.

WILL BUILD SAFES

CANTON, O., June 23.—Officials of the Diebold Safe and Lock Co. here today announced receipt of a standing contract from the federal government for thirteen different types of safes. The company also received contracts for supplying cash drawers.

MEANS MORE OIL

CLEVELAND, O., June 23.—Police Judge Alfred L. Steuter two days ago sentenced Louis Gehringer, 42, accused of drunkenness, to drink half a pint of castor oil or serve thirty days in the workhouse.

"The next time you are brought before me it will be a pint," said the judge.

Today Gehringer again was under arrest on an intoxication charge.

TROOPS WILL LEAVE CITY SATURDAY FOR NELSONVILLE AREA

Detachment Of 25 To Leave; Is Third
Duty Order

A detachment of twenty-five enlisted men and two commissioned officers from Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard of Xenia, will be dispatched Saturday morning to Nelsonville, O., in Athens County for active duty to help maintain order in the Hocking Valley mine strike area, scene of disturbances between striking miners and company officials.

This became certain Thursday, a day after Capt. Harold L. Hays, commander of the Xenia guard unit, had received a "verbal warning" or advance notification from Lieut. Col. John Volka, assistant adjutant general of Ohio National Guard headquarters at Columbus.

A telephone communication Wednesday had instructed the Xenia company to hold itself in readiness for possible duty in the strike region.

Capt. Hays announced that it was his understanding the detachment from the local company would be called out to relieve a unit of militia from Company I, 166th Infantry of Columbus, which has been stationed in the Hocking Valley mine area for about a month. The commander of the Xenia company was at one time a first lieutenant in this particular Columbus company.

Definite word of the necessity for Xenia troops to be sent to Nelsonville was then awaited by Capt. Hays, who said the official order came Thursday morning.

Assignment of a part of the enlisted personnel of the Xenia unit to active duty will mark the third time such an event has transpired since the first company of state militia was organized in this city.

National guardsmen from Xenia were last on active duty in 1913 during the Dayton flood. Before that year the only previous instance on record was during the Court House riots at Cincinnati in the 1890s.

First intimation of the impending call to active service in the strike area came to members of the local company on the regular drill night Monday, and virtually all the guardsmen expressed a desire to be included in the group.

SOIL EROSION MOST SERIOUS PROBLEM NOW FACING FARMER

Land Losing Value
Engineers Told
At Meeting

COLUMBUS, O., June 23.—Fair prices for farm commodities and credit for the farmer are essential to the survival of agriculture, but the most important problem of the farmer is erosion of the soil, according to L. A. Jones, chief of the division of drainage and erosion control of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, who spoke before the American Society of Agricultural Engineers today.

Loss of the fertile top soil will render large areas of cultivated land without value to agriculture, Jones said. At least 75 per cent of land now under cultivation in the United States already has been affected by erosion and more than 17,000,000 acres of farm land has been destroyed, he told the society.

"Nature controls erosion by vegetation, but when man plants crops, he destroys nature's protection," he said. "A substitute such as terracing of the land must be provided."

Ohio farm lands were said by Jones to be subject to erosion. He said a farm for erosion control experiments had been established by the department of agriculture in Muskingum County.

KILLED BY TRUCK

CLEVELAND, O., June 23.—Mrs. Anna Phillips, 71, of Chagrin Falls, died in St. Luke's hospital here today from injuries received when she was crushed by a truck which had no driver. A shopkeeper's truck, parked in a driveway, coasted down the incline as its brakes slipped, struck Mrs. Phillips and crushed her against another automobile.

EDUCATION WILL BE CHEAPER NEXT YEAR
THANKS TO ANTIOCH

A movement looking toward the lowering of the costs of a college education has been initiated at Antioch College by the wife of the president, Mrs. Arthur E. Morgan.

Mrs. Morgan announced that next year fifty "financially embarrassed" students will be fed on a co-operative basis from her table at an average cost of $3.50 a week. In return, the students will help with the work.

After "experimenting" on fifteen students on such an arrangement this year, Mrs. Morgan said she felt she would be able to assist fifty, starting when school reconvenes in the autumn.

With rooms offered at fifty cents a week to the group Mrs. Morgan expects to aid, the students will be enabled to get board and room for only $4 a week.

Coinciding with Mrs. Morgan's plan, the administrative council of the college announced "temporary adjustments" for the student body-at-large including reduction of dormitory rents from $2.50 to $2.25 a week. A dollar-a-week reduction in the food prices in college cafeteria was also announced, making it possible to obtain board at a maximum of $4.50 a week.

Tuition of full-time students will be lowered from $425 to $350.

Antioch's co-operative arrangement of part-time work and part-time study for needy students will be continued. If other employment is not available, work will be found on the campus for those needing part-time jobs to see them through the school year, it is announced.

A compromise agreement over the tuition rate to be charged for school children residing in Xenia Twp. who would be enrolled at Central High School here during the 1932-33 school year was not reached at a joint conference of the city and township boards of education Wednesday night.

Departing from the existing contract with the township board, the city board offered to make certain concessions embodying a lower tuition fee, but a difference of opinion among township board members resulted in failure to accept the proposition offered, it was announced.

The township board has threatened to repudiate the present contract with the city, and has been negotiating with Cedarville and Yellow Springs school boards, seeking to economize in the amount of tuition money annually paid for children who attend high school.

of the highway. The truck, proceeding south, appeared over the brow of the hill, and although Watson, the driver, headed the truck for a ditch, the vehicle struck the left front wheel of the auto.

Neither the sedan nor the truck upset, but the front of the auto was crushed and the truck was also damaged.

Unconscious, Kinwald was rushed to the Xenia hospital by Ted Carrington, a vacationing policeman from Pittsburgh, Pa., who was driving toward Xenia directly behind the Cleveland car.

The group of highway employees riding in the truck was on its way to a point near Spring Valley to clear the pike of gravel washed over places in the road during a recent heavy rainstorm.

COUNTY WILL SLASH SALARIES COMMISSIONER BEAM PREDICTS

Prediction that the Board of Greene County Commissioners would ultimately order slashes made in salaries of appointive public office holders of the county now receiving more than $1,200 a year was made Wednesday by A. E. Beam, president of the board.

Salary reductions of 30 per cent for persons holding appointive positions had been recommended to the board in petitions bearing more than 1,400 signatures, presented by a committee representing Granges of Greene County.

It was revealed by Commissioner Beam that the board has deferred taking action on the petitions, but that the suggested cuts, probably not amounting to 30 per cent, however, would possibly be incorporated in the 1933 general county budget which will be prepared before September 1.

The petitions included the request that a reduction be made in

CONTINUE PROBE OF FISH SUFFOCATION

Investigation of alleged contamination of Massie's Creek and the Little Miami River, blamed for the deaths of many thousands of fish by suffocation over the week-end, was continued Wednesday.

Frank Hard, Washington Court House, deputy supervisor of fish and game for the district which embraces Greene County, and a representative of the state department of health, were escorted by E. D. Stroup, Greene County game protector, on an inspection tour to view the large number of dead fish washed up along both banks of the two streams.

Future developments in the inquiry are expected to await a consideration of reports submitted by officials to the state health department and conservation commission.

"IF IT'S CITIES SERVICE... IT HAS TO BE GOOD"

No danger of carbon from oil that passes this tough test

Faltering power—knocking on hills—big bills for valve grinding and overhaul—that's the way you learn that the oil you have been using has too much carbon. The chemist's test for carbon is the complicated apparatus shown above. He places a small amount of oil in a porcelain dish. This goes into a crucible, which in turn goes into a second. Careful application of heat—never too much, never too little—will evaporate the oil in about thirty minutes.

Then comes the most exciting part—for the carbon residue that remains must be weighed with extreme precision. A variation of five thousandths of a gram may mean the difference between acceptance and rejection of the whole run.

By thus checking every run of oil from Cities Service refineries, Cities Service chemists make it easy for you to avoid the risk of excess carbon. The Cities Service emblem on any grade of oil certifies that it has been tested and found well within rigid limits for carbon content—just as it has been found to have the proper body, the proper pour-point, the proper resistance to heat.

These chemists test every run, of both gasoline and oil, and reject any that do not "measure up." That's what we mean when we say: "If it's Cities Service, it has to be good!"

Cities Service—one of America's ten largest industrial organizations—broadcasts, Friday, 8 P. M. (E. D. T.), over WEA-F and 32 associated N. B. C. stations.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Open ye the gates, that the righteous nation which keepeth the truth may enter in.—Isaiah, xxvi, 2.

HAYS WAS THERE

Will Hays sat among the guests of honor in the boxes at the Republican National Convention last week. Twelve years had brought a little fullness to his face and a shrewd droop to his eyes. Nothing in his expression betrayed what he was thinking; but from time to time, he must have viewed many a ghost as he reflected upon the changes which had come in those 12 years; years that had touched him lightly, but were like a bridge between eras for a person who had been present at the last preceding convocation of the party in Chicago.

Mr. Hays had not only been among those present at the historic convention of 1920; he had been chief engineer of the show, an adept among adepts at the political game, who knew how to spread harmony or run the steam roller as occasion demanded—and how!

We were speaking of ghosts. At that convention of 1920, the temporary and permanent chairman was Senator Henry Cabot Lodge; and when he threatened to have the galleries cleared, the crowd did not jeer. It was scared to death and shut up. And how the little white-haired, aristocratic looking Senator did take President Wilson and the Democrats down the line!

The two guests of honor were "Uncle Joe" Cannon and Senator Chauncey M. Depew, and we remember that Mr. Depew told a story—it would be quite an innocent one in these days—which made the ladies in the auditorium gasp.

The principal candidates for the Presidency at the commencement of the convention—there were a lot of minor ones, including Nicholas Murray Butler—were Gen. Leonard Wood and Gov. Lowden, Mr. Hoover, not yet quite sure what he believed politically, was nursing a boomlet and maintaining expensive headquarters over in the Annex, and Senator Hiram Johnson, coached by Senator Borah, also was keeping open house in the same hotel. Senator Harding was modestly housed, but he had Harry Daugherty to run things behind the scenes, Frank Willis to make his nominating speech, and a deadlock between the major candidates to help him to his fate; and it was he who got the big nomination. A certain Calvin Coolidge, not yet very well known, received the lesser plum, after Senator Johnson had haughtily turned it down, and in so doing had taken leave of his political fortune.

Today, where are those who were in this picture? Senator Lodge is gathered to his fathers in the fullness of years. Speaker Cannon and Senator Depew also are gone. So are Gen. Wood and Senator Willis. President Harding has had his tragic day and sleeps the long sleep. Calvin Coolidge has been president and has chosen not to run. Senator Johnson lives on in bitterness of soul but mingles no more in party convocations. Harry Daugherty is out of politics fighting a feud with the aid of printing press and publisher. Herbert Hoover is in the White House, waiting to see whether the American people will decide to keep him there. He alone of all those talked about at the convention of 1920 still remains an outstanding figure in the Councils of his Party. Truly, in politics, 12 years is a long time.

MAY CLEAN UP

There is ground for real hope that Congress will clean up its work and be in a position to quit by the end of the week. The Democrats want to get away so they can all attend the party jamboree that opens in Chicago next week, and President Hoover wants them to go. He will be tickled half to death to see the last of the crowd of Senators and Representatives, until December. And while the Republican contingent in the two Houses hasn't as much incentive to hurry matters as their Democratic colleagues have, they are tired of the session, too, and most of the Representatives are anxious to get home and begin the fall campaign. So as the Weatherman would put it: Relief is in sight.

With the arrival of that relief the Country knowing the worst or the best that Congress has done with the financial and economic questions put up to it, will be able to go ahead and see what can be done toward restoration of prosperity, without being in continual fear lest somebody in Washington may do something overnight that will kick over all their plans and calculations.

NATIONAL DEFENSE POLICY

By F. TRUBEE DAVISON
Assistant Secretary of War

The United States maintains its military establishments not as aggressive agencies for war but designed to maintain peace and to preserve our institutions. After all, we must not forget that the Army had a good deal to do with winning our independence and has been called on several times in our history to preserve our integrity.

Our policy of National Defense is in accordance with the American traditions of adequate preparedness and for defensive purposes only and obviously must be adjusted from time to time to meet world conditions as we find them.

This government is taking the leadership in the movement to reduce armaments throughout the world. Until that leadership has been accepted and followed we cannot neglect preparedness. To do so would be to invite disaster. Even as police forces are maintained to deal with individuals who violate the law so we must maintain an adequate Army and Navy as long as there is a chance that outlaw nations will attempt to violate the peace.

In his speech on Armistice Day, 1929, President Hoover expressed the Administration's attitude on the subject of preparedness in the following words:

"Until such time as nations can build the agencies of pacific settlement on stronger foundations; until fear, the most dangerous of all national emotions, has been proved groundless by long proof of international honesty, until the power of world public opinion as a restraint of aggression has had many years of test, there will not have been established that confidence which warrants the abandonment of preparedness for defense among nations. To do so may invite war."

"I am for adequate preparedness as a guaranty that no foreign soldier shall ever step upon the soil of our country. * * * No American will arise today and say that we wish one gun or one armed man beyond that necessary for the defense of our people. To do so would create distrust in other nations, and also would be an invitation to war. Proper defense requires military strength relative to that of other nations."

Adequate preparedness in terms of men and money is more economical and certainly more merciful than a modern war. Modern war is expensive. The World War cost millions of dollars a day, not to mention the inestimable cost of human life and happiness. Every dollar spent, every precaution taken toward preparedness in time of peace, not only insures national security against war but is also the only effective means of bringing any war that might be inflicted upon us to a swift and successful conclusion.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

PARIS—Plick-flack of the boulevard: From many a sidewalk cafe, table I have watched those hawkers of Oriental rugs....Solemn-eyed Turks with their brightly colored wares slung across a sturdy arm....Never have I seen a sale consummated, yet I have must somehow get on....When you think of it, it is a little extraordinary for a person to sit down for a cup of coffee or a glass of beer and end up by buying a rug.

What lengths of invention have combined to produce that potpourri of novelties offered for sale to café patrons....Everything from postcards which mew like cats to saltcellars which moo like cows....The other day I weakened and bought a pair of the most engaging love birds I've ever seen.

An ancient Frenchman offered them among the sippers at the Café de la Paix....The birds emerged from their cage at his bidding and did astounding aerial tricks, following each other from arm to wand to finger to cage, dizzily, heartwarming....They even performed for me—but only once. As soon as they'd left their master's care they stuck solemnly to their cage and refused to budge, under coaxing in two languages....

Worse, on the second day, one of them died....Whether it was the gentleman or his wife, I'll never know. But I did know that the survivor would quickly follow his mate to oblivion or whatever heaven love birds have....Within two hours the lone bird began to droop....It is an invariable peculiarity of the species....

This morning the following pneumatique arrived at my door through the vast air-pressure-tube system of Paris...."Try putting a pocket mirror in the cage!"...It was signed by Joe Zeili, the famous night club impresario....I took the tip and the remaining bird, sure that its mate has returned every time it sees its own reflection, has begun to perk up.

PARIS WEATHER

Now I know why Paris in the spring and summer has so romantic a reputation....The weather here is as capricious as a star of the Opera Comique. Heavy clouds and brief, violent downpours are followed, after minutes, by bursts of expansive sunshine....

I have seen the Alps with their picture postcard perfection of beauty, and I have peered, on occasion, at some of the more famous American and European views, but I contend that the most moving sweep of sky and city in the world is that to be had from the top of Montmartre—Sacré Coeur at sunrise....It doesn't stagger you like the panorama from the Empire State building, but it brings an odd, mellow lump into your throat....Standing there on the spot where a temple to Jupiter stood a thousand years ago....

Sacré Coeur's 6 o'clock mass is a sight to bring a flare of faith in the heart of the most confirmed agnostic....It would seem to me that lovers would travel there from all over the world to stand in that cathedral and watch the candle-lighted, eerily pious, ritual of worship at the far end....

On the wall of the garden in the rear, as on all religious edifices in France, is a bell with the inscription "Ring Here If You Want to Worship Late at Night."

DISTINCTION

One unmistakable difference exists between Broadway and the Rue des Italiens....On the latter street the other evening Mistinquette, the internationally famed nude, half star for nearly a generation, strolled with a friend. There was a hush, a whisper through the crowds. Every eye turned....On Broadway the passage of a celebrity would have occasioned nothing of the kind.

MY! HOW TIMES HAVE CHANGED!

Steady Jobs Are Suggested As Object Of Trek To Capital Rather Than Bonus Payment

WASHINGTON.—"At this point," according to the Congressional Record of a few days ago, breaking off in the middle of a sentence its stenographic report of a passionate appeal by Representative Edward E. Eslick of Tennessee to his fellow lawmakers, in behalf of the World War veterans, "Mr. Eslick was stricken and fell dead and was carried from the chamber by his colleagues."

Simply set down matter-of-factly as part of that day's proceedings in the house of representatives! True, congress adjourned for the rest of the afternoon. Fifteen or twenty thousand members of the B. E. F. (Bonus Expeditionary Force) marched the next day in ragged, mournful procession to the Union station, to see their dead champion off, in his coffin, to be buried at Pulaski (Tenn.). Out of their virtual pennilessness they scraped up the price of a wreath for the occasion.

However, official Washington did its best to soft-pedal the veterans' part in the ceremonies. Officialdom desires above everything to avoid stressing the news that ex-service men are gathered in formidable numbers at the capital. The White House let it be known long before the bonus bill was voted on that President Hoover would veto it, even if it passed both houses of congress. It was hoped that this would discourage the threatened concentration of workless veterans, to lobby for its adoption.

The veterans are here, nevertheless, in ominous strength. The thing now is to prevent them, if possible, from capitalizing their presence by national publicity. The fact is, if the B. E. F. can stick it out on the banks of the Potomac a little longer, it will get more or less what it is after. It probably will not get the bonus, but it will have the money for the election of pro-bonus congressmen!

"Rations are all gone," is a stock announcement—and it is true that they are meager, but they never do quite give out; officialdom knows better than to take chances with actual hunger. "No more medical attention," was the notice issued.

And oh, how the heads of government shudder at the prospect! Chief of Police Glassford talks constantly of "evacuating" the demonstrators "within 48 hours." But how? He can hardly bring troops from Fort Meyer to disperse them forcibly. It would be flying in the face of overwhelming public opinion. He can scarcely arrest 20,000 veterans as vagrants.

How the authorities have appealed to the governors of the states to head the marchers off on their trek toward the capital—or persuade them to return home if they are here already!

The bands that have played "California Here I Come," "Home Sweet Home," "Away Down South in Dixie," "Out Where the Tall Corn Grows," "The Sidewalks of New York" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia" in an effort to make visitors homesick!

The prosperous looking Legionnaires who have circulated among their old comrades in arms, advising them to hurry home and work for the election of pro-bonus congressmen!

"Rations are all gone," is a stock announcement—and it is true that they are meager, but they never do quite give out; officialdom knows better than to take chances with actual hunger. "No more medical attention," was the notice issued.

I Stole Fifty Cents And Forgot It

And Never Paid It

The things we have done or have forgotten to do are like small stinging insects that never forget us.

They light on our necks and sting us and then go swiftly away on trips around the world. We think they are gone forever, but sooner or later they come back to give us another stinging. Probably we deserve it, but it's not the most comfortable experience in the world.

Yesterday I passed a vacant store. It was a melancholy little spectacle, but it was something that made me stop. The little store was familiar to me. It was bound up somewhere inside of me, with the stinging of a conscience. Standing there, I remembered that in this little store, years ago, I stole 50 cents. Of course, I didn't intend to steal it. That came afterwards but it was a theft just the same.

It was late in the afternoon and I needed pliers or a chisel or some other small tool. I forgot just what I rushed downtown and came to a little hardware store. A nice old fellow sold me the tool, but when I reached for my money I found I had left it at home....

I didn't have time to go back and get it. So the old fellow said that would be all right; I could take the tool and pay him some other day.... Well, I never did pay him. I forgot it entirely. Perhaps he did, too. I hope so. Or perhaps he did remember and was cautious about trusting strangers who'd forgotten their money.... I don't know about that. But it was a pleasant old man and he may not have held my delinquency against other people.

Six months ago it would not have been too late. He was still in business then. I had plenty of opportunity to make amends. But I didn't remember until it was too late entirely.... Now the old man is dead. I inquired around and learned that fact. He lived so long that he was all alone when he died, owing nobody a cent. But I owed him 50 cents, and for me that's a pity and I'm ashamed of it.

But I'll not be getting off easily. I'll pay that 30 cents in various ways. I'll wince whenever I pass that spot. I'll regret. I'll be sorry it's too late.... That winged insect will sting me and force me to dedicate more than one 50-cent piece in compensation for my theft; and to the memory of that smiling, trustful old man.

Two Types Dyspepsia Described

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

There have always been two types of dyspepsia. One is the patient with acid indigestion, sour stomach—whose indigestion is really caused by peptic ulcer. He has almost always a ravenous appetite and the indigestion consists of discomfort of more or less severity after a meal has been eaten. But he really digests his food all right, and on account of the appetite keeps in good weight.

The only good name for the other kind is "asthenic dyspepsia." The patients present the typical picture of the dyspeptic. They are thin and bent over and the brow is furrowed with a general dissatisfaction with life. They can't eat. They have no appetite. They belch. They are constipated. They have a list of things as long as your arm which disagree with them.

They take dyspepsia tablets, sometimes one kind and sometimes another, changing around—charcoal one month, pepsin the next, soda the next, etc. etc. They get their stomachs washed out, they go from stomach specialist to stomach specialist, they know all the gossip, they delight in their friends' misfortunes, they complain, and in spite of how sick they say they are, they live and live and live. When they have been sick about 50 years they begin to get better and the last 20 or 30 years of their lives—that is from the age of 70 to 100—they have a right good time.

What is the matter with these people? When one looks at the stomach that has been causing all this trouble there is very little to see that is wrong. The trouble is the whole body has been put together the wrong way.

The stomach in this asthenic or visceroprotic dyspeptic is too large and it hangs down too low. It has too little muscular power. The intestines sag. They have no tone. The kidneys float. Naturally all the muscles are weak. Food stays in the stomach a long time and efficient digestion and absorption is not carried out. They are always fatigued and unhappy and always trying to do something they haven't strength for.

The treatment must take into consideration the whole body of the patient. An important element is plenty of rest. The diet should be light and very nourishing. The patient should lie down for an hour after each meal so as to help the stomach in its digestion and emptying. A corset to support the abdominal walls is often a great comfort. Exercises to strengthen the abdominal walls also help. Surgical operations on this type of patient, such as to anchor a floating kidney, have been found of little value, as all conservative surgeons agree. Often mental therapy in the way of assurance that their illness is not of bad prognosis is the most valuable portion of the treatment.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clending, Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Peculiarity Embarrasses Wife

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Wouldn't you like to be able to look into people's minds—some of them, that is—and see "what makes the wheels go round?" They do and say such puzzling things, and if one only could understand why, one might be able to help. At any rate one would have more charity.

MRS. X. Y. Z. writes me of the mystifying conduct of her husband.

"I am 29," she writes, "rather good looking, have a good personality. When I meet people they seem to like me. My husband is 41, good looking, very well educated, intelligent. Hates to visit anyone and won't, but loves to have everyone visit him. He will come and help make a large meal for any number of people in our own home, but won't visit. What shall I do?"

"That is not my big worry. He seems ashamed to tell any of his friends he's married. All are family men and good ones. If his friends have occasion to telephone for business or pleasure, and ask him who answered the phone, he will say his mother or sister, although they don't live with us. Once a friend of his called and asked who I was and not realizing it, I said Mrs. —. When my husband found out what I had done he was very angry. He said, 'I've talked this over with him, but got no satisfactory answer, or worry him with it.'

From his point of view it's not important enough to talk about. "What shall I do? When I'm introduced as his sister, should I say I'm his wife or let it pass?" I should be inclined to think there was "a nigger in the woodpile." Mrs. X. Y. Z. I think I should—if I were in your shoes—go over all the circumstances of our marriage to see if I really WAS married to him.

I should also be inclined to investigate his past to see if it could be possible that he had a previous wife and that in consequence I was not his legal wife.

That would be a woman's natural reaction to such a peculiar obsession in a husband. I should think, I cannot seem to think of any legitimate reason or possible mental kink which would make an intelligent, well educated man take such a peculiar attitude. Usually such a man as you describe would be proud of his personable young wife and anxious to introduce her to his friends as such.

As to his other peculiarity—that of not liking to go visiting, that might be due to shyness or to an early unpleasantness, or any one of a number of things. I would simply have it understood among our friends that he preferred not to go to their homes, but that they were always welcome to drop in and do nothing further about it but got no satisfactory answer, or worry him with it."

Obliges With Bleaching Recipe

By GLADYS GLAD

"DEAR MISS GLAD: I read in a magazine about a certain solution for bleaching the skin which contained buttermilk oatmeal and lemon juice. I don't however, know how much of each to use, and how to use the solution. Can you enlighten me?" HILDA.

"ANXIOUS MARY." The bleach you refer to is not a solution. To prepare it, add buttermilk to three tablespoons of ground oatmeal until a thick paste results. Then thin this out with lemon juice until it is of the right consistency to spread smoothly. Before applying this mask, cleanse the face with bland soap and tepid water. Then rinse away the soap, and while the skin is still moist, spread the paste generously over it. This oatmeal, buttermilk and lemon juice mixture should be permitted to remain on until thoroughly dry. Then it may be removed with tepid water and a soft cloth. If it seems a bit too drying to the skin, a little cold cream or nourishing cream may be applied after its removal to counteract any such effect.

"DEAR MISS GLAD: With the aid of the reducing course outlined in your "New Figure" booklet, I've managed to reduce my weight by 31 pounds. And what a different appearance I present now! I feel like a positive siren with my new figure. However, my bust is still a bit too large. I'm going to continue with your instructions on bust reducing, but I'd also like to know, please, if I can do anything to make my bust at least appear smaller. JUNE DEE."

I'm glad indeed that you've found my booklet such a help. If you continue with the bust reducing instructions, this part of your body should also finally become slenderized. In the meantime, however, you can make your bust appear smaller through your gowning. First, avoid wearing gowns that fit the upper part of your body tightly, as they will accentuate the largeness of your bust. Also, keep away from wide, frilly collars and jabots, as they will make you appear top-heavy. Wear dresses with low V or oval necklines, jacket frocks, and costumes with oval or pointed vest-ties of a contrasting color, as they will do the most to reduce the apparent size of your bust.

"DEAR MISS GLAD: For the last three months I've been wearing my hair arranged softly behind my

POEMS THAT LIVE

LOVE-SWEETNESS

Sweet dimness of her loosened hair's downfall

About thy face; her sweet hands round thy head

In gracious fostering union gathered

Her tremulous smiles; her glances' sweet recall

Of love; her murmuring sighs memorial;

Her mouth's culled sweetness by thy kisses shed

On cheeks and neck and eyelids, and so led

Back to her mouth, which answers there for all:

What sweeter than these things, except the thing

In lacking which all these would lose their sweet:

The confident heart's still fervor; the swift beat

And soft subsidence of the spirit's wing.

Then when it feels, in cloud-girt wayfarer,

The breath of kindred plumes against its feet?

Betrothed to Al Smith's Son

Pictured in Albany, N. Y., is Florence E. Watson, stenographer in the State Education Department, who has admitted that she is engaged to Walter J. Smith, younger son of former Governor Alfred E. Smith. She declined to reveal their wedding plans, but said she had met Walter two years ago.

Army's Battery of Ears

Modern warfare depends less and less on human agency as progress marches on. These sound locators, the sensitive ears of the anti-aircraft fleet, are shown in operation at Fort Tilden, N. J., where big coastal artillery recently conducted a theoretical defence of New York Harbor. The locators get the sound of the approaching enemy fleet long before the human ear can detect it and the anti-aircraft guns do the rest.

Marine Honor Man and Fiancee

Graduation meant a lot more than a diploma to Albert J. Keller—he's a lieutenant now, by the way—honor man of the Marine Corps Basic School at Washington, D. C., for now he's free to march to the sweet music of Lohengrin. Lieut. Keller is shown with his fiancée, Margaret Margraf of Baltimore after the commencement exercises. They will be married soon in the bride's hometown.

Vaporizing Tent

Science of Seeing

Because of an epidemic of eczema which struck the monkey house at the New York Zoo, this vaporizing tent was hastily constructed. "Billy," 13-months-old chimpanzee, is pictured inside it breathing the pine vapors thrown off by the kettle of boiling water at left.

Dr. Matthew Luckiesh (above) of Cleveland, O., recently announced the development of the new "science of seeing" by making 2,000,000 tests over a period of 20 years. He succeeded for the first time in measuring the ebb and flow of human energy caused by the use of the eyes under various kinds of lighting, using a whole series of newly invented measuring devices.

Joy-Ride Tragedy

Arrested after a wild joy-ride had ended in the death of a girl companion, Marjorie Gauthier, 16, of Beverly Hills, Harold L. Menjou (above), 30-year-old stepson of Adolphe Menjou, film actor, is shown after he was questioned by Los Angeles authorities. Menjou, said to have been intoxicated at the time, was speeding at 80 miles an hour, chased by a motorcycle patrolman, when he crashed on a sharp curve. The girl was thrown out of the car and instantly killed. Menjou suffered several facial abrasions.

THESE MEN ARE EXPECTED TO WRITE PLATFORM

According to pre-convention reports, the committee which will be formed to write the Democratic platform in Chicago, will be of the progressive element of the party.

Senator Hull of Tennessee is expected to head the committee, otherwise composed of Senator Walsh of Montana, Senator Glass of Virginia, Senator Connally of Texas, Frank Walsh, noted liberal lawyer, of New York, and possibly Senator Wagner of New York, who, however, has been opposed by Tammany.

Alleged Kidnapper

Stanley Price, above, was accused in Los Angeles of attempting to kidnap pretty Ruth Thompson, who charged that a man stopped her car as she was driving home from a party in the early morning. He commanded her to drive on, holding a pistol to her head, but she drove her car into a truck. Price denied ever having seen the girl before.

wife, who is 21. Inset is Mrs. Waters' 86-year-old sister, Mrs. Sadie Fitts of Burneyville, Okla., who declares her father was 26 when she was born in 1846. James Monroe was president when Shirley was born.

G. O. P. Running Mates Again

Once more chosen to head the Republican ticket in the 1932 national elections, President Herbert Hoover and Vice President Charles Curtis posed for this picture at Washington, on the day following their renomination at Chicago. Despoiled Church Cornerstone Times are indeed getting tough when the few coins in the cornerstone of a church are no longer safe. The Rev. Harry W. Fullerton, of the Faith Methodist Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, is shown carefully inspecting the spot from which the cornerstone was removed recently by thieves. Police and church officials are puzzled by the strange theft, inasmuch as the stone contained only a few old coins.

BY Mrs. C. B. Osborne
CHAMPION IOWA JELLY MAKER

"In the last 5 years my jams and jellies have won 83 prizes at the Iowa State Fair. And the Certo short-boil jelly making method deserves most of the credit."

"Certo, first of all, reduces boiling time to one minute for crushed strawberry jam, for instance. And this fact explains both the speed and economy of the Certo method of making jam or jelly, as well as the quality of the product that results."

"For with only 1 minute's hard boiling needed, 12 minutes is ample time to make a full batch of prize-winning jam or jelly. And since no fruit juice has time to boil away, I often save as much as 2 1/2¢ per glass over jam or jelly made the old long boil way."

"And my Certo-made jam tastes better, too... simply because the short boil keeps the ripe, delicate flavor of the fruit itself from boiling away in wasteful steam."

Why don't you do as Mrs. Osborne suggests and order a supply of Certo today—with your strawberries? You will be delighted at the time and money it will save you. And the extra flavor it will give your jams and jellies, too... if you will follow carefully the Certo recipes that come in the booklet attached to every Certo bottle. Get your bottle from your grocer's today. It is a product of General Foods Corporation.

Ann Harding In Shell Ordered Not To Tell

In the future, Ann Harding will give no interviews to the press. As the first step in her new policy of aloofness, the blonde star has put her affairs in the hands of Harry Edington, Greta Garbo's business counselor and the man many believe originally advised the Swedish actress to adopt an air of mystery.

Ann denies, however, that she is part didn't quite measure up to what they have in mind for Sidney, who now seems sure for stardom.

Ernest Schmidt, who with Horace Zell and others, is among the real live Roosevelt men here, was pleased to receive the following message from his friend Teddy from Chicago: "Am badly beaten but not discouraged. Good work done by Zell, Stiles and yourself will never be forgotten. Keep up the fight against the bosses and interests. In four years we will demonstrate that the people must rule."

Remember Walter Hiers, the plump comedian? After playing personal appearances for many months, Walter is back in make-up at the Paramount studio where he'll do a comedy role in "70,000 Witnesses."

Like many of the old silent stars, Walter still has popularity around the land and gets steady bookings for personal appearances. Many other well-known players of the silent days are pocketing their pride and playing atmosphere at various studios. One thanked a director the other day for letting him stand with his back to the camera in a closeup.

Other players in the film in which Hiers will appear are Big Boy William, Phil Tead and Humphrey Bogart.

Despite his appearance on the screen, Ronald Colman is really a diligent workman. For the three stories that Samuel Goldwyn has considered for him this year, Ronnie has worked out his own characterization and playing script.

He always knows his lines perfectly, he's always on time for rehearsals and, with the help of his manager, William Hawks, he practically has established his own auxiliary reading department to help Goldwyn and his staff find suitable Colman stories. He personally answers any out of the ordinary fan mail and his photos are not machine autographed.

Ronnie has been an actor for fifteen years. He feels he isn't an overnight star and has attained his position by hard work.

Yet success is an unpredictable thing. A few years ago Mae Clarke, Barbara Stanwyck and Wanda Maxfield were doing high-kicks in a night-club line. Now Mae and Barbara are stars, while Wanda is playing bits around the studio.

COUNTY SHARE OF RELIEF BONDS CAN NOT BE USED FOR SCHOOLS

Although Greene County has not and is not expected to issue poor relief bonds this year, nevertheless this county remains eligible to receive $51,744 estimated to be its share of $12,000,000 expected to be made available during the next five-year period to various Ohio counties for poor relief purposes from the 1 per cent additional excise tax on public utilities, passed by the state legislature.

This interpretation is placed by county officials upon an opinion given by Attorney General Gilbert Bettman this week to Prosecuting Attorney Marcus E. McCallister, who had sought to learn what disposition could be made of the funds allocated to Greene County in the absence of new bond issues for poor relief.

School districts had awaited the attorney general's ruling with interest, hoping that at least a portion of the additional revenue would be used for direct financial relief of needy school districts. The recent opinion shattered this hope.

It is anticipated that the added money raised by the public utility excise tax will be placed in a special fund and used for poor relief under conditions otherwise specified in the bill.

The allocation to the various counties is based on the ratio of a county's population to the state population, as shown by the 1930 census, plus the ratio of the total tax duplicate of a county in 1930 to the state tax duplicate of the same year, plus the total valuation of public utilities property in a county in 1930 to the total valuation of utilities property in Ohio in the same year.

Shares of counties are intended to be used in retiring bonds which may be used in 1932 for poor relief purposes in the amount to which they are entitled, but should any of the counties not issue bonds for relief purposes, they will be permitted to their share in cash, but only as a tax collected from year to year during the period that the added 1 per cent tax is in effect.

In the absence of new poor relief bond issues, the attorney general ruled Greene and other counties have the option of distributing the tax money for poor relief as otherwise specified, or of adding the funds to the county sinking fund for retirement of new poor relief bond issues of the county.

Did you know that the English starling birds that made their debut in this country about two years ago are getting to be a greater nuisance than the little English sparrow? We are bird lovers but hate to have our old faithful red head woodchuck run off by the starling. They inhabit the woods and build in the holes where the squirrels like to go but they soon chase the squirrels out of their way.

Cost Her $4.25 To Reduce 65 Pounds

"Worth It," Miss Bates Says.

If you're young and fat read what Miss Bates of Beech, Iowa, has to say about Kruschen Salts—If you are middle aged or old Kruschen shows you the way to lose fat the SAFE way.

"I took one bottle of Kruschen Salts a month for five months. It amounted to $4.25 and I reduced 65 lbs. but it was worth it. I imagine just 22 years old and weighing what I did. I could not enjoy myself as other girls did. I could not get the clothes I wanted I think it is wonderful the results Kruschen Salts give"

To lose fat the safe, sane way—take one-half teaspoon of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning—eat less fatty meats, potatoes and sweets a jar that costs but a small sum last 4 weeks. Get it at any drug-store in the world—but be sure for your health's sake to ask for and get Kruschen Salts. It's the little daily dose that does it.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Remotest substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.
